Yet, there are major limitations during import - namely, each object in diagram will be treated as unique object, despite having same type and name, forcing redrawing large sections of diagrams after import. Users can create diagrams containing an unlimited number of modeling objects. Instead, each diagram is stored in an ADF file. ARIS Express uses a mechanism provided by Java Web Start to automatically update the application as soon as a new version becomes available and the user is connected to the Internet during startup. After installation, no Internet connection is needed to use ARIS Express. It supports different modeling notations such as BPMN 2, Event-driven Process Chains (EPC), Organizational charts, process landscapes, whiteboards, etc. Microsoft Visio import - Diagrams created with Microsoft Visio 2007 or above can be imported to and edited in ARIS Express. History ARIS Express was first announced on April 28, 2009 in a press release by IDS Scheer.[5] The first release was on July 28, 2009 in a public beta test on ARIS Community.[6] Only people, who registered before for the beta test were allowed to download and test this beta version.
